Item no.: KØM 01699x00305

Description: Key, material: Copper alloy
Viking Age (775 AD - 1050 AD). Like Ulfheim's (1989) type I C:2. Parallels in Birka grave 462 (Arbman 1943, tavle 275, 3)

Length (mm): 38, width (mm): 17.56

Fragment of key with roughly pentagonal bit with rectangular perforation. Fragmented at the bow.

Circumstances of the find: Cooking pit, A10050.

Catalogue number 411

Item no.: KØM 01699x00626

Description: Fragment of key, material: Copper alloy
Viking Age (775 AD - 1050 AD). Like Ulfheim's (1989) type I C:2

Length (mm): 57, width (mm): 29

Fragment of key with roughly pentagonal bit with a rectangular perforation. At the transition from stem to the drop-shaped bow there is a transverse, rounded pin. The uppermost part of the oval, openwork bow is missing.

Circumstances of the find: Stray find.

Catalogue number 412

Item no.: KØM 01699x00823

Description: Key, material: Copper alloy
Viking Age (775 AD - 1050 AD). Ulfheim's (1989) type I:B2. Parallels in Helgö, grave 17 (Melin 2001), and Almgren 1955, 61, pl. 10-11.

Length (mm): 28.14, width (mm): 21.06

Fragment of a key. Short stem and bit, which is approximately pentagonal with three cylindrical teeth extend outwards at a right angle. The bow is largely broken off and its shape cannot be discerned.

Circumstances of the find: Stray find.

Catalogue number 413

Item no.: KØM 01699x00944

Description: Key, fragment, material: Copper alloy
 Viking Age (775 AD - 1050 AD), Ulfheim's (1989) type I:C2. Parallels from e.g. Birka and Lejre (Baastrup 2015, cat.no. 251). Other finds from the same feature indicate that this is from the Early Viking Age.

Length (mm): 33.21, width (mm): 25.24

Fragment of a copper alloy key. Short (broken-off) stem and bit, which is approximately pentagonal with three cylindrical teeth and rectangular perforation. The bow has broken off. Along the various edges of the item runs a line of punched dots arranged one next to the other in a thin line.

Circumstances of the find: A12570, cultural layer with many other items, among these an equal-armed brooch (Baastrup, catalogue for this publication article 7, cat.no. 54) and a fragment of a plate brooch (Baastrup, catalogue for this publication article 7, cat.no. 36). The items date the feature to, respectively, the Early Viking Age and the Late Germanic Iron Age.

Catalogue number 414

Item no.: KØM 01699x00657

Description: Key, material: Copper alloy
 Viking Age (775 AD - 1050 AD), Ulfheim's (1989) type IV:B1, see e.g. similar keys from Birka graves 24A and 823 (Arbman 1943, Taf. 267:1) and from Lejre (Baastrup 2015, cat.no. 252)

Length (mm): 86.11, width (mm): 7.7

Fragment of a key with a flared stem and at the one end two prongs emerge in a ninety degrees angle. Cross section is rectangular. One side of the stem, which broadens a little around the middle, is decorated with bands that intertwine. The end opposite the prongs has broken off.

Circumstances of the find: Cooking pit, A10783.

Catalogue number 415

Item no.: KØM 01699x00121

Description: Key, material: Iron
 Viking Age (775 AD - 1050 AD), presumably like Ulfheim's type IV: A1, although the prongs are missing; they may have broken off.

Length (mm): 83.33, width (mm): 23.98

Key of band-shaped iron, at the one end the stem bent to form a right angle. The other end is folded into a loop.

Circumstances of the finder: Cooking pit, A10004.

Item no.: KØM 01699x00407

Description: Key, material: Iron

Presumably Viking Age (775 AD - 1050 AD) Parallels from Hedeby (Westphalen 2002, tavle 67 1-3)

Length (mm): 117.83

Key where the lower part of the stem splits into two everted prongs (T-shaped). The stem widens a bit in the middle. The upper part of the key has a loop with a separate ring attached.

Circumstances of the find: Stray find.

Catalogue number 417

Item no.: X1237

Description: Key?, material: Iron

Presumably Viking Age (775 AD - 1050 AD). Parallels from Hedeby (Westphalen 2002, tavle 67). A 14C-dating from the pit places it in 775-970 AD.

Length (mm): 20.84, width (mm): 19.39

Fragment of an iron key. Presumably fragment of a T-shaped key, though it is broken off and only the terminal of the lower end is preserved.

Circumstances of the find: Pit, A31003.

Catalogue number 418

Item no.: KØM 01699x00659

Description: Key (?), material: Iron

Dating uncertain, possibly Late Germanic Iron Age on the basis of other items from the same feature.

Length (mm): 25.45, width (mm): 23.5

Small fragment of iron, possibly from a key with a circular or oval bow. (Akin to Baastrup 2015 cat.no. 258, which however has a longer section between bow and hook).

Circumstances of the find: A10968, pit. A fragment of a bird brooch and a plate-shaped fragment of a piece of jewellery or similar were found in the same pit (Baastrup, catalogue for this publication article 7, cat.nos 19 and 113)

Item no.: KØM 01699x00408

Description: Key (?), material: Iron

Undated

Length (mm): 113.58, width (mm): 11.76

Stem with an attachment loop at the upper end. The lower end is broken off. Possibly the stem from a key. The cross section is square/rounded and the item becomes band-shaped towards the fracture. See e.g. Baastrup 2015 cat.no. 259 for a similar key.

Circumstances of the find: Stray find.

Catalogue number 420

Item no.: KØM 01699x00819

Description: Key (?), material: Iron

Undated but similar stems for keys are known from, inter alia, Birka grave 324 (Arbman 1943, tavle 274, fig. 1).

Length (mm): 53.51, width (mm): 27.76

Drop-shaped bow of band-shaped iron. Possibly a bow from a key.

Circumstances of the find: Stray find.

Catalogue number 421

Item no.: KØM 01699x00403

Description: Tweezers, material: Copper alloy

Presumably Late Iron Age

Length (mm): 74.88, width (mm): 9

Tweezers, made from a single strip of copper alloy, folded over on itself with a defined loop to the top of the tweezers. From the loop, the arms widen before they turn inwards to form the 'blades'. Decorated with stamped-in circles. The item is likely from the Viking Age or the Late Germanic Iron Age, but another date cannot be excluded.

Circumstances of the find: Stray find.

Roast fork with three prongs and a right-angled stem. Parts of the prongs are missing. Parallels from Tissø in western Zealand, inv.no. KN555, and Hedeby (Westphalen 2002, tavle 58)

Circumstances of the find: Soil-sieving trench 2453.

Catalogue number 470

Item no.: KØM 01699x00523

Description: Roast fork, material: Iron

Viking Age (775 AD - 1050 AD)

Length (mm): 125, width (mm): 69

Roast fork that has broken off right at the start of the stem. It is nonetheless discernible that the handle was right-angled. Three prongs, one of which has broken off. The tips of the prongs are bent, and on the underside is yet another prong for each one, shorter than the top ones but likewise bent at the tips. One of these has broken off. At the transition to the stem is a lozenge-shaped and perforated section with a twisted rod through it.

Parallels known from Hedeby (Westphalen 2002, tavle 59)

Circumstances of the find: Stray find.

Item no.: X1177

Description: Possible drill, material: Iron

Undated, but presumably Viking Age, cf. find spot in a cultural layer on site

Length (mm): 130.9, width (mm): 7.72

Elongated iron object whose one end has a slightly rounded cross section and the opposite end a rectangular cross section that goes into a trapezoid, flat section. The trapezoid end was presumably set into a wooden handle, while the other end functioned as a drill.

Circumstances of the find: Cultural layer A30608 (no other finds from this cultural layer).

Catalogue number 491

Item no.: KØM 01699x00825

Description: fitting or staple, material: Iron

Undated

Length (mm): 77, width (mm): 50.21

Iron plate with two deep notches cut into either side so that three flaps are formed that fold up. The middle points are folded further in than the side ones.

Circumstances of the find: Pit, A11580.

Catalogue number 492

Item no.: KØM 01699x00711

Description: Fitting, material: Iron

Undated, presumably Viking Age (775 AD - 1050 AD), (cf. circumstances of the find: together with an arrowhead dated to the Viking Age, cat.no. 262; Bastrup catalogue for this publication article 7).

Length (mm): 154.14, width (mm): 17.2

Angled fitting, probably for a coffer or casket. Either end seems to end in a round plate with a central rivet hole. The item is widest at the middle and tapers towards the ends. The length is given here as though the fitting were folded out.

Circumstances of the find: Pit house G103.

Catalogue number 493

Item no.: KØM 01699x00865

Description: Fitting or suspension ring, material: Iron

Undated, but found together with, inter alia, a fragment of an oval plate brooch (cat.no. 36) and an equal-armed brooch (cat.no. 54), dated to the Late Germanic Iron Age and the Early Viking Age, respectively.

Length (mm): 39.55, width (mm): 38.57

Fitting - for suspension? Band-shaped and preserved in shape of a horseshoe, though broken off at both ends so that the original shape is unknown.

Circumstances of the find: Cultural layer, A12570.

Item no.: KØM 01699x00749

Description: Comb, material: Bone

Viking Age (800 AD - 1050 AD), cf. Ambrosiani 1981, 25; A-comb.

Length (mm): 200, width (mm): 47

Comb, composite single comb, made of bone and with a slightly domed top side. A chip has broken off at one end, and several teeth are missing. The item has been broken into pieces and mended again. The middle layer is held in place by two connecting plates and joined with six little iron rivets (irregularly placed). The two connecting plates are identically decorated: along the edge are two grooves and centrally on the comb, with about 3.5 cm between them, are concentric circles that form a (Roman numeral) I.

Circumstances of the find: Pit house G101.

Catalogue number 681

Item no.: KØM01699x00092

Description: Comb, material: Bone

Viking Age (800 AD - 1050 AD) According to Ambrosiani 1989; A-comb. Combs with similar decorations are known from, for example, Vester Egesborg (Ulriksen 2018) and Elisenhof (Tempel 1979, 157-158).

Length (mm): 52, width (mm): 30.4

Fragment of a composite single comb. The comb consists of three layers joined together with iron rivets. The item is decorated with three vertical lines with concentric circles near the ends and two parallel lines along the back and the toothed side. The ornamentation is identical on both sides.

Circumstances of the find: 3047, soil-sieving trench.

Catalogue number 682
